Seventh-day Adventist Church
All Taking A Hand In Investment
Investing for God — The Sabbath school of the church at headquarters of the Potomac Conference of Seventh-day Adventist at Staunton, Va. have a reason for rejoicing: for a few weeks ago they reached their goal set for $1600.00 from investment projects. The largest investment offering in the history of the church.

A large portion of this fund was raised by the Church Roll, Kindergarten, Primary and Junior classes. They sold flower seeds, peanuts and various items.

The Appomattox Church was also blessed with a substantial sum from investments. All this money goes to aid in New mission work in the Lord's great vineyard here and there throughout the world field. Jesus, sending out the 70 workers in Luke 10:1,2, said to them, 'The harvest is truly great but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into his harvest. May we continue to send them out. How sad these words of Jeremiah's. The harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.' Jer. 8:20.

Deeds of sacrifice and of kindness bring enlightment, joy and thrill to the human heart. A wonderful partnership this, to work, and share our time in promoting his work for others. Especially when all are working together.

Pastor William E. Carpenter left for Loma Linda, California Sunday, Jan. 19 and will be gone for two weeks or longer.

Our Sabbath School and church Services will be continued at the usual hours and will be conducted by laymen of the church.

And, the invitation is the same All are welcome. Come.

Baptist Men's Day at Liberty was well attended last Sunday. Mr. Sam Hudson, a layman of Lynchburg, and Mr. Jerry Burke, a local Presbyterian layman brought good messages and the men of the congregation led both worship services. The theme, Liberty and Light, a nation wide theme for Baptists was carried out in both of the services.

Sunday is the regular church conference at which time a report of all of the church activities will be given. Missions Night will be observed Wednesday night at 7 p.m. This night is designed for the entire family. The WMU, Brotherhood and one group of the R.A's meet. This is followed by thirty minutes of prayer service at 7:30. The church is making plans for a Sunday School witnessing campaign February 24.

The Appomattox Associational Evangelistic Conference will be held at the Church Monday night, February 10 at 7:30. Rev. R. E. McDowell of the Falling River Baptist Association will speak. Ushers will be in charge of the program.

CLIFFORD FLESHMAN

Airman In Texas

LACKLAND AFB, TEX.—Airman Clifford Fleshman, son of Rileigh Fleshman, of Appomattox Va., is being reassigned to Amarillo AFB, Tex., for technical training as a United States Air Force supply specialist.

Airman Fleshman, who enlisted in the Air Force a short time ago, has completed his initial basic military training here.

The airman attended Amherst (Va.) County High School. His wife is the former Clara White of Rt. 1, Pollocksville, N. C.

Tobacco Planting

ty — February 10, evening at Buckingham Court House: Amherst and Nelson counties, February 13, evening at Temperance School, Amherst.

A minimum annual production of 10 million pounds is necessary if the export trade, now comprising about 40 per cent of annual disappearance, is to be held, it was agreed at the recent Roanoke meeting. The 1963 production is currently estimated at about 6.5 million pounds.

"If the foreign processing companies turn to other countries for a more secure source of tobacco it will be extremely difficult ever getting them back for our Virginia leaf," Roy B. Davis, Jr., warned them.

Machine Missing

Somewhere is this county is a wringer washing machine and a 1947 Ford truck — Both of them looking for new owners, and we are looking for the advertiser who has them for sale!

The TIMES-VIRGINIAN has had good response from a small classified ad offering either of these items in the January 23 issue. We believe that Mr. T. B. Williams placed the ad. If he will get in touch with the TIMES we can give him names of prospective buyers.

AND, if you have a bed, chest, refrigerator, washer or almost ANYTHING—you'll find that a classified ad will sell it!

When Lori Nelson blew out the candles on her fourth birthday cake recently, it seemed that every youngster her age in Rosalie, Neb., turned out for her party.

Only a few months before the remarkably pretty child had been the butt of taunts and giggles from these same children. Lori was born with a rare birthmark — a thick, unsightly covering of hair extending from her right shoulder to mid-forearm. Instead of finding playmates among the other boys and girls, all she ever encountered were finger-pointers and name-callers.

Lori found these gibes, when scarcely out of infancy and the crib, more than any sensitive child could endure. So did her parents, Marlene and Chester Nelson, an attractive farming couple, who for almost three years searched unsuccessfully for a medical answer to the problem.

Brother Also Heartsick

Also heartsick was David, 6, Lori's brother, who more than once came home with a black eye because he fought off all the heartless kids in town who poked fun at his little sister.

"Chester and I were almost out of our minds with this terrible affliction," Mrs. Nelson explained. "Lori, a frightened and confused child, was withdrawing into a shell. The present picture was painful enough, but my husband and I looked ahead and into the future when our pretty child like any young woman, would want to go to dances and have dates and fun and, in time, a husband and family.

"No one gave us any reason for hope. Then I read somewhere that the March of Dimes was planning a birth defects center in Omaha. We were waiting at the door when it opened a year and a half ago."

The center, supported by March of Dimes contributions from chapters throughout Nebraska, is at Children's Memorial Hospital and is directed by Dr. Lester R. Pfundt, chairman of the pediatrics department at Creighton University School of Medicine. It is one of 48 such centers across the nation.

Dr. Pfundt consulted with Dr. Albert S. Black, a noted Omaha plastic surgeon, who is a "team member" of the March of Dimes-supported center and an associate professor of surgery at the University of Nebraska Medical School. He saw no reason for despair.

Lori underwent four surgical procedures by Dr. Black. He removed the hairy suface of the right arm which was then placed by grafts of skin from her right thigh.

"Essentially what we did," Dr. Black explains, "was to excise the cause of Lori's fears and torments, and restore a whole little girl to the carefree world of children. The arm is still rather scarred, inevitably. But later on by high-speed planning and tattooing, the arm will be normal in appearance — and by the time she is in high school Lori will have difficulty remembering which arm exhibited this perverse quirk of nature."

Mrs. Nelson was selected as the Nebraska March of Dimes Mother for 1963. She and her husband have forgotten their fears about persuading their daughter to go to kindergarten. They confide that next summer, as a reward for her pluck, Lori may be riding around the farm aboard a Shetland pony.

Here are a few hints for caring for nylon garments. Since nylon is a scavenger of colds separate colored clothes from whites when washing. If a nylon garment accidentally picks up color, this can be removed with a color-dye remover following the instructions for synthetics. Use a low temperature in drying nylon, high temperatures yellow or scorch the fiber. Problems of static electricity with nylon can be reduced if a fabric conditioner is used in the final rinse.

Abbitt Opposes Dark-Fired Cuts

Rep. Watkins M. Abbitt has said dark-fired tobacco allotment in Virginia need not be cut this year as a result of surpluses of burley, dark-fired, and dark-air-cured tobacco in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Abbitt, chairman of the tobacco subcommitte of the House Agriculture Committee, noted news dispatches from Washington quoting Kentucky and Tennessee legislators as favoring allotment cuts. He said these reports did not make clear the distinction between Virginia Type 21 dark-fired tobacco and Types 22 and 23 grown in the border-ing states. He added that while there apparently is a surplus of Type 21 tobacco grown in Kentucky and Tennessee, the Virginia type stocks are "in good shape" and no cut is necessary.

The Virginia Fourth district congressman said Virginia growers should be given an increase for some tobacco for making unused allotments available to growers who are willing to produce crops.

The variation in determining allotments in the three states is due to legislation which Abbitt sponsored several years ago. This law provides that allotment quotas for Type 21 Virginia tobacco be considered separately from allotments for Types 22 and 23 tobacco.

"This is most fortunate for Virginia growers," Abbitt pointed out. "We in Virginia will not have to be penalized due to surpluses in the other areas."

W. R. Evans Addresses National Convention, Las Vegas, Nevada

William R. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Evans, Appomattox, was a featured speaker at the national meeting of Master Pool Builders, an organization of swimming pool builders and suppliers of related equipment. Title of his address: "Advertising Through Trade and Profession-al Associations."

Evans is regional sales manager for Swimquip, of Richmond including Master Pools by Jo-Pa. Evans told the convention that there are over 100 trade organizations in Virginia in which Master Pool builders and Swimquip participate. They include Virginia Hotel Association, Virginia Motel Association, Virginia Restaurant and Motel Association, Virginia Travel Council, Virginia Association of Sanitarians, Richmond Area Home Show, and Atlantic Real Exposition or State Fair. He spoke of the advantages of advertising through trade and professional associations. In setting up advertising booths Swimquip relies on large displays of sand, tile, samples of white coat. Booth space for trade shows may vary from $25 to $300, with a total cost of one series of exhibits — $1500 to $2000 on an estimated 50,000 people. This type of advertising may bring as much as 75 to 100 gross contracts, Evans told the pool builders. In "manning a booth", Evans offered this suggestion: Get some part-time help from a related product — in the case of Swimquip, a chemical manufacturer will send a man and a display of chlorine.

The Governor's Highway Safety Committee says that speed doesn't kill in traffic. But the Committee adds that force of impact does and that speed is the only way to build up force of impact. Please, slow down, live and let live.

Industrial Arts Important In School

Today the Industrial Arts Program is becoming more and more a focal point in our nations schools. Vocational training is receiving much concern from government officials and educators.

Training in the industrial arts is an important part of the total education of the modern boy and girl. Its aim is to give the pupil a background that will help him fit into the world of work, which is the basis of our industrial arts program.

The industrial arts program provides means for the pupil to experiment with different kinds of tools, materials, and equipment. He learns how to handle these tools efficiently and to make things that fulfill a need and or satisfy a creative desire. By practicing with these tools and materials, he learns how the same tools and materials are used by those who work in industry on a larger scale.

His industrial arts training does even more than this. It helps him understand the industrial life that goes on in his community, state, and country, and in the countries of the world.

Realizing the importance of this training, our Industrial Arts Program at Carver-Price is set up to give the students training in three important areas of industrial arts. These areas are woodworking, mechanical drawing and building trades.

In these areas of industrial arts, we try to help the student develop skills and abilities that will enable him to prepare for the future ahead. Since the formal training in industrial arts usually terminate at the end of the twelfth grade for most students, we try to prepare them so that it will be a continuous process for them.

It is our desire that the skills and knowledge profided in our Industrial Arts Classes here at Carver-Price will enable the students to obtain employement or to become a more proficient worker in providing economic security for himself and his family.

Civic Chorus Plans Concert

The Appomattox Civic Chorus plans to present a spring concert. First rehearsals for the May 15 concert will be held Sunday, February 2, at 2:30 p.m. at the Appomattox Presbyterian Church. All interested persons are invited to come and sing along with the group. There are no "try outs" for singers wishing to join. Chorus members who sang in "The Messiah" are urged to return and to bring additional singers.

Chorus president Franklin Vaughan says that the concert will be part sacred—part secular. Director for the spring concert will be Rev. Thomas A. Waddill, Spout Spring, with Mrs. Wirfred Elder, pianist.

If you like to sing, you are eligible to join the Civic Chorus. The first concert of the group was presented in December, the Christmas portion of Handel's MESSIAH.

Enemies are the heritage of success. Nobody envies a failure.

Bloodmobile Coming February 7

How County's Blood Quota Is Set;

From Dave Snow, Field Representative, American National Red Cross

The blood quota for Appomattox County for 1963-64 is 264 pints. This is based on blood needs of 165 pints per year (average) for Appomattox County residents over a three year period.

There are a number of reasons why the Appomattox b'lood quota is higher than the number of pints used by Appomattox residents. First, blood is kept on shelves in the hospital waiting to be used. If it is not used during 21 days, it is returned to Roanoke and made into serums. 85 above, the blood quota for Appomattox County includes the amount of blood waiting for an Appomattox resident who never had the accident that the hospital was prepared for.

Second, a number of donors have to be rejected, and must not give blood for donation, and this blood must only be used in this county. Perhaps 15 pints of blood donated in Appomattox each year cannot be used for patients, so a chapter's quota must be higher to cover this.

The third reason is that our blood region is a large coverage region. This means that we cover all people in all counties that have joined in our program, and our hospitals cover all patients who happen to need and use blood. For example, a resident of Rochester, New York, might happen to pass through our region on vacation, have an accident, and use Red Cross blood. This person probably would not repay this blood to the Red Cross, so the region would be out the number of pints used. Your chapter and every other chapter helps to meet the needs of such people. Also, residents of other counties which are not in the Red Cross Blood Proprram such as Cumberland, Buckingham, Nottoway and Mecklenburg use our blood when they go to one of the hospitals in our region, because most of these hospitals have no other blood than Red Cross blood. These people do not replace all of the blood they use, so our chapters that are in the program carry these people as well as their own residents. Some MD's in non-participating counties actually send their patients into our region when they are going to need blood, so they can get Red Cross blood rather than blood that they would be required to pay for. I am hoping that when I get most of my chapters in the blood program, this type of problem will be eased, and quotas will fall somewhat.

Sincerely,
David R. Snow
